EASTMAN'S SEEDS

For 1907

FOR OVER TWENTY YEARS our Annual Seed Catalogue has contained extended descriptions of the varieties of vegetables and flowers that have seemed best adapted to the needs of our customers.

If—as it would seem—many of these descriptions have become as familiar to you as they are to us, the repetition this year would appear to be a waste of space, and rather a hindrance than a help to the selection of your requirements. By eliminating much of this descriptive matter, we are enabled to give our list in much more convenient form for ready reference, making it emphatically a catalogue for busy people, to whom minutes mean dollars.

If we are mistaken in the preferences of our customers, we may resume the old form of catalogue another year. In the mean time, for any who wish more extended descriptions, we still have a small surplus of our 1906 catalogues, which are free while they last.

We Warrant our seeds to be exactly as represented, to the extent of refilling the order gratis, to same value, should there be just cause for dissatisfaction.

Extra Seeds may be selected by the packet to the amount of 20 cents for every full dollar remitted. On all general orders, seeds to the full amount of the actual remittance may be either by the packet or by the pound, ounce, quart, etc., but the EXTRA seeds must be by the packet only. The only exception to this offer is on orders consisting almost wholly of high priced seed in quantity, such as onion seed by the pound, peas by the bushel, etc.

We Pay the Postage on seeds by mail at list prices. Seeds by express are at expense of purchaser.

How to Send Money. Sums of over one dollar may be sent at our risk by postoffice money order, express order, bank draft or registered letter. One dollar or less may be sent at our risk in a securely sealed letter, plainly addressed to

OUR NEW POTATO

"NAMELESS" NO LONGER

We had a potato, and we trusted to our customers to give it a worthy name. In accordance with our original offer, we last year printed a list of ten names which we selected from the names suggested by our customers of 1905, and these ten names were submitted to the vote of our customers of 1906, the result being a plurality of votes for the name

FARMER'S FRIEND.

This name was suggested by Willis G. Jones, of Connecticut, and it is interesting to note that although nine other names were in competition, a fraction over 24 per cent of the entire vote was for FARMER'S FRIEND. Mr. Jones writes us:

"Your Nameless Potato is all you claim for it. I planted eleven kinds in one row. Nine of them rotted badly, yours and one other did not rot all. What the farmers want now is a round white or netted potato to take the place of the red Stray Beauty. Round potatoes take the place of long ones in my market. The 'nameless' fills the place, that is why I named it FARMER'S FRIEND."

In introducing this potato in small lots for trial two years ago, we claimed for it these ten points of excellence:

1. Extreme earliness.
2. Vigor of growth.
3. Ability to withstand disease.
4. Productiveness.
5. Uniformity of size, and small proportion of undersize.
6. Fine shape—nearly globular.
7. Beauty of color,—pure white, with little splashes of red, especially about the eyes.
8. Superior table quality, either baked or boiled.
9. Long keeping characteristics.
10. The happy combination of all these points in one variety, making it an A 1 all round potato.

Our claims seem to be abundantly fulfilled in the experience of our customers, while on our own grounds they have out-yielded the Green Mountain with identical treatment, and have withstood rust to a greater degree than any other potato we know. All who have not already done so should try the FARMER'S FRIEND this year.

Eastman's Early..... 30 40 5

This sweet corn leads in earliness, is the finest in quality of the extra earlies, and out-yields every early variety we have ever tested.

At the N. H. EXPERIMENT STATION, in a field test of 41 varieties, EASTMAN'S EARLY took the lead in the combination of earliness, yield and quality.

The U. S. DEPT of AGRICULTURE tested this variety at its Experiment Stations north, west and south. With Cory Peep O' Day, Golden Bantam, etc., in comparison, in every instance EASTMAN'S EARLY led all other varieties in earliness of maturing the crop.

Eastman's Early, Extra Selected..... 40 50 10

Our seed stock is always selected from the first and best ears to ripen, while corn is standing in the field. From a similar selection of the first-fruits we offer this stock to such of our customers as prefer to pay a little more for the probable gain of a few days in the earliness of the crop.

Market Garden..... 30 40 5

Good to follow Eastman's Early.

--------------------------------	--	--	--	----

The earliest of all musk melons, and the largest of the extra earlies. On account of short crop last year, we are unable the preseat season to offer the Granite State by the ounce and pound.

Bulletin 52, New Hampshire Experiment Station gives a tabular report of 72 varieties of musk melons tested, the Granite State leading all others by seven days in earliness, and was equalled in yield by two varieties only.
